

Master of Professional Psychology

Question	Response
What are the entry requirements?	You can find information about our courses including the entry requirements, study load options, career pathways and more on the relevant course study page: • Master of Professional Psychology Note: This course is only available to Domestic students. Domestic students are students who are Australian or New Zealand citizens, or Australian permanent residents.
What can I expect from the course (subjects, class time, assessment etc.)?	You can find detailed information on course structure and learning outcomes for each of our courses on the relevant handbook page: • Master of Professional Psychology If you click through to the course structure page, you'll see a list of the subjects you will take in this course. You can in turn click through to each subject to find out more detailed subject-specific information.
What career options will I have after completing this course?	Upon completion of this course, you will be eligible for entry to a one-year internship and to sit the National Psychology Exam and then apply for registration as a Generalist Psychologist. You will be clinically trained and upskilled to work at a broader population-level focused on key societal issues such as understanding community behaviour change. As a generalist psychologist, you will be ready to apply your skills in assessment and treatment with a wide range of clients with mild to moderate mental health conditions.
If I have completed an honours year, will I be eligible for credit going into the MPP?	If you have already completed 4th year and are successful in applying to the UoM MPP program you may be eligible for some course credit. This won't take a full year off the program, but it will mean you are exempt from completing the research component and likely some other subjects. If you are considering this option, it would be a good idea to reach out to us to discuss in more detail.
If I have completed an honours year, then am I still able to apply for the MPP or should I apply for one of the clinical masters courses?	It really depends on your future work interests and which direction you want to take. A clinical psychologist is more of a specialist whereas MPP graduates work more as generalist psychologists. You can also complete the MPP and at a later stage do a 'bridging' course- such as the Graduate Diploma in Clinical Psychology to be eligible for endorsement as a clinical psychologist.
Can I apply for the MPP without having completed honours?	Yes, you do not need to have completed an honours / fourth year in order to be eligible for the MPP.

Is there a bridging program if I complete the MPP and later decide I want to be a Clinical Psychologist?	Yes there is! If you are a domestic student and already registered as a psychologist in Australia, you may be eligible for the Graduate Diploma in Clinical Psychology as a pathway to become a Clinical Psychologist.
How are placements organised?	The placement coordinators will assist with sourcing placements once you are admitted into the course.
How to enrol after undergraduate, how much the course costs, what type of research should be done for the research project and how would placement be attained?	Refer to the course structure outlined here Master of Professional Psychology
For someone who wants to keep their career options open over the long term, and may eventually combine clinical practice with areas such as teaching, research, leadership or systems improvement, what additional opportunities does clinical endorsement provide compared with practising as a general psychologist?	There is no difference between the general psychologist and clinical psychologist endorsement in relation to the areas that have been outlined. Each have their own merits and it may depend on the type of clinical presentation you would be interested in working with/researching/teaching.
Once an applicant has been shortlisted for interview, how are candidates differentiated? For example, can a candidate with a somewhat lower entry WAM but a stronger interview, references and relevant experience ultimately be preferred over someone with a higher WAM?	Offers for interviews are made on the basis of WAM. Offers for a place are made on the basis of a combination of WAM and interview performance score.
For relevant professional experience, what kinds of experience tend to strengthen an MPP application? For example, would disability support work, mental-health support work, research assistance or other client-facing roles be viewed differently?	Work experience relating to professional practice is prioritised - all those listed are appropriate, and if research assistance, then experience where you are interacting with clients/mental health patients would be desirable.
How does the four-year part-time structure work in practice? Are placements also spread across the four	If you need to do a part-time load, then coursework subjects are required to be completed before placements. Placements are scheduled in the final years, and are part-time students able to structure their timetable around employment?	year. Subjects are scaffolded in terms of learning progression and are not structured around student employment timetables.

This document was created for the Postgraduate Psychology Information Session on 25 August 2026

The University of Melbourne (Australian University) PRV12150 / CRICOS 00116K

What does the transition from completing the MPP into the required internship typically look like for graduates? Where do graduates usually obtain those positions, and how difficult is it to secure one?	All of our graduates have successfully found internships. In some instances, students have been offered internships at the provider where they are doing their external placement. Typically, internships are found in the dominant areas of placement, such as private practice, child/youth services, community and NGO services, and education settings. Internships may be offered in hospital and forensic services depending on student suitability. We dedicate class time in the final placement subject (year 2, semester 2) to discuss application strategies and how to effectively structure the supervision requirements. We are also part of the organising committee for a national symposium on internship matters which is held around early October each year. We do not manage the internship process.
If I were to do a professional psychology masters would that be valid for work in other countries?	A professional psychology master degree is not automatically valid for independent practice in other countries, because psychology registration and licensing laws are strictly country-specific. Your qualification must still be evaluated and approved by the regulatory board of the destination country.
For applicants who did undergrad many years ago but a recent GDPA, does this satisfy recency for MPP?	Psychology Board requirement enforces qualifications must be within 10 years.

Master of Psychology (Clinical Psychology)

Question	Response
What are the entry requirements?	You can find information about our courses including the entry requirements, study load options, career pathways and more on the relevant course study page: • Master of Psychology (Clinical Psychology)
What can I expect from the course (subjects, class time, assessment etc.)?	You can find detailed information on course structure and learning outcomes for each of our courses on the relevant handbook page: • Master of Psychology (Clinical Psychology) If you click through to the course structure page, you'll see a list of the subjects you will take in this course. You can in turn click through to each subject to find out more detailed subject-specific information.
What career options will I have after completing this course?	Graduates of this course will be able to apply for generalist registration as a psychologist in Australia and will have gained the competency in knowledge and skills relevant to the clinical psychology specialisation. Graduates must also complete the PsyBA registrar program to be eligible for endorsement as a Clinical Psychologist. Please contact the PsyBA for further information on the registrar program.
What does the pathway look like for a UK student with a 3 year degree in Psychology (with Honours)?	Please take some time to review our pathways document: https://psychologicalsciences.unimelb.edu.au/__data/assets/pdf_file/0005/5318870/Pathways-to-working-as-a-psychologist.pdf As you will see in the diagram, there are many different pathways that a UoM student might take to work as a registered psychologist or in a related field.
How necessary is clinical experience and what does that entail exactly?	Prior clinical experience is not a strict prerequisite for admission, but the built-in clinical placements are mandatory to graduate and register as a psychologist
For the Clinical Psychology Master's programme, are exceptions ever made to the four-year undergraduate degree requirement for applicants with a three-year degree, particularly if it is an honours degree that includes an honours dissertation? For example, might particularly strong academic	Generally, there are no exception to the four-year undergraduate degree requirement for applicants for the Masters entry. In the case of scenario that is described, it's an unusual scenario for a three year undergraduate degree to contain an Honours dissertation. That specific qualification and its equivalence to the University's standard Honours degree would have to be looked into and determined.

performance also be taken into consideration? If not, are there any pathways (such as additional credits or bridging study) that would allow someone with a three-year honours degree to become eligible without needing to complete another degree?
What modes of therapy are taught in the clin psych masters?	Therapeutic skills in the Master of Psychology (Clinical Psychology) program are taught primarily within a broad cognitive-behavioural framework.
If you complete the Master of Psychology (Clinical Psychology)/Doctor of Philosophy, will you graduate with both the PhD title and title of clinical psychologist? I.e., can I practice under the protected title of clinical psychologist after I graduate?	Yes, graduating with the the Master of Psychology (Clinical Psychology)/Doctor of Philosophy award means that students will receive both the titles. Once registered with AHPRA, graduates can practice under as a Clinical psychologist.
How does the MSc Clinical Psychology program prepare international students to practice psychology in their home countries?	The focus is very much on practising psychology in Australia based on the Australian registration competencies, and it is worth applicants examining how this overlaps and perhaps also doesn't with the practice of psychology in their home country.
What does a typical week on campus look like for full-time MCP student	It depends very much on the time of year - but here is a rough guide to year 1 once placement starts: Two days per week: placement at UMPC, close to campus but off site on Cardigan St, seeing up to 3 clients per day plus doing clinical documentation, supervision, connecting with peers Two days per week: coursework - across campus One day per week: thesis

Master of Psychology (Clinical Neuropsychology)
Question	Response
What are the entry requirements?	You can find information about our courses including the entry requirements, study load options, career pathways and more on the relevant course study page: • Master of Psychology (Clinical Neuropsychology)
What can I expect from the course (subjects, class time, assessment etc.)?	You can find detailed information on course structure and learning outcomes for each of our courses on the relevant handbook page: • Master of Psychology (Clinical Neuropsychology) If you click through to the course structure page, you'll see a list of the subjects you will take in this course. You can in turn click through to each subject to find out more detailed subject-specific information.
What kind of patients might a clinical neuropsychologist treat?	Any type of patient that has a condition that could affect their cognitive function or brain function, such as stroke, traumatic brain injury, epilepsy, dementia, MS, brain tumours, neurodevelopmental conditions, psychiatric conditions, liver disease, diabetes etc.
What types of experiences students can expect during their placements?	All students will be rotated through 4 types of settings: acute neurology, rehabilitation, paediatrics and psychiatry. Placements are arranged for you and are mostly in hospitals, with some also occurring in the private sector or other government funded agencies (e.g. ARBIAS).
What career options will I have after completing this course?	Graduates of this course will be able to apply for generalist registration as a psychologist in Australia and will have gained the competency in knowledge and skills relevant to the clinical neuropsychology specialisation. Graduates must also complete the PsyBA registrar program to be eligible for endorsement as a Clinical Neuropsychologist. Please contact the PsyBA for further information on the registrar program.
Is Master of Psychology (Clinical Neuropsychology) science focus? Is it recommended to come from a science background?	While it is common for our students to have focussed more on the Science subjects in undergraduate, many of our students come from an Arts background. Consequently, all teaching assumes that there is no specialist background science knowledge in our students outside what is gained in their undergraduate 4-year APAC accredited sequence of psychology subjects.
Does work experience need to be clinical to be considered?	No, work experience does not strictly need to be clinical.

What is the interview format for Clinical Neuropsychology, and what competencies are you primarily assessing?	The interview is Multiple Mini Interview, pre-recorded. The interviews are to understand your motivation, why you chose course, why to be generalist psychologist; role-play/hypothetical clinical situations.
Immediate career prospects post-graduation. Especially in terms of entry level psychology jobs attainable with a Neuropsychology masters.	The current market for neuropsychology graduates is extremely strong, with more jobs being advertised than graduates available to fill them. While this does fluctuate, the trend for the past 5+ years has been increasing numbers of job opportunities in clinical neuropsychology each year, not less.
Can you please clarify what the pre-recorded Neuropsychology interview involves and if there is an opportunity to re-record?	Pre-recorded online: candidates record answers to set questions and submit. Takes ~45 mins. Role-play/hypothetical scenarios. Time to read question then reply within set time. No re-recording, it is all in one go.
When are applicants notified that they got an interview for neuropsychology?	Rough timeline under "After You Apply" section (study pages).
In Master of Neuropsychology do you need to do a research thesis?	One core subject in year 2 is Thesis (Masters/coursework) Part ½: produce journal-article style thesis 6,000 to 10,000 words by 31 Oct in final semester.

Graduate Diploma in Clinical Psychology
Question	Response
What are the entry requirements?	You can find information about our courses including the entry requirements, study load options, career pathways and more on the relevant course study page: • Graduate Diploma in Clinical Psychology
What can I expect from the course (subjects, class time, assessment etc.)?	You can find detailed information on course structure and learning outcomes for each of our courses on the relevant handbook page: • Graduate Diploma in Clinical Psychology If you click through to the course structure page, you'll see a list of the subjects you will take in this course. You can in turn click through to each subject to find out more detailed subject-specific information.
What career options will I have after completing this course?	Graduates of this course will be eligible to complete the PsyBA registrar program to be eligible for endorsement as a Clinical Psychologist. Please contact the PsyBA for further information on the registrar program.
Is it possible to undertake the Graduate Diploma in Clinical Psychology after completing one of the other postgraduate psychology courses at UoM?	Yes, the Graduate Diploma in Clinical Psychology is a bridging course for non-Clinical Psychology graduates, who have full registration as a psychologist with the Psychology Board of Australia, training in the skills necessary for specialist endorsement as a Clinical Psychologist. To apply for this course, you would need to have completed a Master of Professional Psychology (or equivalent) or a Master of Psychology (Clinical Neuropsychology) or equivalent.

Master of Psychology (Educational and Developmental)

Question	Response
What are the entry requirements?	You can find information about our courses including the entry requirements, study load options, career pathways and more on the relevant course study page: • Master of Psychology (Educational and Developmental)
What can I expect from the course (subjects, class time, assessment etc.)?	You can find detailed information on course structure and learning outcomes for each of our courses on the relevant handbook page: • Master of Psychology (Educational and Developmental) If you click through to the course structure page, you'll see a list of the subjects you will take in this course. You can in turn click through to each subject to find out more detailed subject-specific information.
What career options will I have after completing this course?	Graduates of this course will be able to apply for generalist registration as a psychologist in Australia and will have gained the competency in knowledge and skills relevant to the educational and developmental psychology specialisation. Graduates must also complete the PsyBA registrar program to be eligible for endorsement as an Educational and Developmental Psychologist. Please contact the PsyBA for further information on the registrar program.
What will the day-to-day routine look like for students in this course? Will the majority of the placements be in the school setting or somewhere else?	In first year, students attend classes two days per week and prac min. two days per week. In second year, there is less coursework but more placement and research. There are 3 placements, one must be in an educational setting, the other settings include private practices and clinics.

Postgraduate Psychology General FAQs

Question	Response
What will the actual WAM cut-off be for the course I am interested in? / I met the minimum entry requirements listed, why did I not receive a place in the course?	The entry requirements that we publish for our courses are the minimum criteria that must be met to be considered for a place. This means that simply meeting the entry requirements does not guarantee a place in the course. The exact cut-off for entry requirements varies from year to year based on the strength of applications received. We do not share the exact cut-off from previous years as this may be misleading, since the cut-off from a previous year is not indicative of where the cut-off will be in the upcoming year.
What are the key differences between the Clinical Psychology and Professional Psychology Masters programs?	The Master of Professional Program enables graduates to become general Psychologists (one year of internship + national exam required following graduation to become registered). As a generalist psychologist, you will be ready to apply your skills in assessment and treatment with a wide range of clients with mild to moderate mental health conditions. In contrast, the Master of Psychology (Clinical Psychology/Neuropsychology/Ed&Dev) provides generalist registration as a Psychologist immediately when you graduate. Then some further training is required to become an endorsed Clinical/Clinical Neuro/Educational & Developmental Psychologist following your graduation, but this program sets you on the pathway toward that endorsement.
What is the difference between a Clinical Psychologist and Clinical Neuropsychologist?	Clinical psychologists are trained to diagnose and treat individuals experiencing a range of mental health difficulties- from depression, anxiety through to psychosis and substance use disorders. They typically work in public mental health or private settings. Neuropsychologists are concerned with the affective, behavioural, and cognitive manifestations of diseases of the central nervous system, particularly those affecting the brain, in adults and children.
What are the pathways available at UoM to become a psychologist?	Please take some time to review our pathways document . As you will see in the diagram, there are many different pathways that a UoM student might take to work as a registered psychologist or in a related field.
Can I transfer from one postgraduate psychology course to another?	There are not direct course transfers, you would be applying to the second course as a new student and would need to meet any entry requirements the same as any other applicant.
How competitive is it to get into postgraduate psychology courses at UoM?	Entry into these programs is very competitive.

Are there any recommendations for the referee report when applying for Masters psychology courses?	Our requirement is that applicants for our master's programs in Psychology must submit two references (to be submitted online) from academic and/or professional referees. If possible, at least one referee report should be completed by an academic staff member. The second referee report may be completed by academic staff members or by any registered clinical profession (and not just a registered psychologist). It is advisable that the academic staff member reference is from a psychology academic, but if not possible, any academic staff member is suitable too. Choose referees who know you - we aren't going to be making decisions based on who your referee is but what that say about you. While work or volunteer experience is not an entry requirement for our Masters programs, if you have relevant experience, you may wish to refer to it in your application.
Does UoM preference applicants who have previously studied at UoM?	No, applicants are assessed by the same criteria regardless of where they have studied previously.
I am an international student, should I apply using an agent?	Whether to utilise an agent (or which agent to use) is the decision of the applicant. International applicants should have the eligibility of their prior overseas qualifications assessed by the APS. Please check the course website for further information regarding timelines.
Can I study postgraduate psychologist without an undergraduate degree in psychology?	No, this is not possible due to guidelines released by the Psychology Board of Australia. We offer the Graduate Diploma in Psychology as a pathway into further study for students who have completed a Bachelor degree in a field that is not related.
When do the interviews for the Clinical Masters courses happen?	For the Clinical Masters, shortlisted applicants will be notified of their interview in the leadup to the interview period (which will be running from Oct-Nov for international applicants, and Nov-Dec for domestic applicants).
How many places are available in the Masters courses? For domestic students, how many of these are CSP and how many are full fee?	We do not disclose the exact figures for our intakes, but there are typically 10-20 students commencing each year in each of our Master of Professional Psychology, Master of Psychology (Clinical Psychology) and Master of Psychology (Clinical Neuropsychology). The exact breakdown of how many domestic students are on CSP vs full fee varies from course to course and year to year, and is dependent on a range of factors. CSP are allocated based on merit to the most competitive domestic applicants. Typically, the cohorts are split roughly 2/3 and 1/3 between domestic and international students respectively, but the ratio can vary from year to year depending on applicants and the availability of CSP places. The latter is determined by the University and ultimately by the Government.
How many hours per week do I need to spend studying? Can I work a job while studying my masters?	Full-time students are expected to spend around 30-40 hours per week on a combination of classes, placements and self-study.

	As most of a student's time will already be spent on their studies, we require that students do not work more than approximately 8-10 hours per week, as it will become increasingly difficult to juggle employment and studies at the same time.
Can I study these courses online?	All our postgraduate Psychology programs are taught face-to-face and must be completed in-person.
How do we find our placements in the course?	The placement coordinators will assist with sourcing placements once you are admitted into the course.
What scholarships are available?	You can read about UoM scholarships here . Scholarships are not typically available for students entering a Masters or Graduate Diploma- unless they meet some other criteria such as having Indigenous background.
How can I have recognition of disadvantage or special consideration when my course application is assessed.	If you are applying for a graduate degree and have experienced, or are experiencing disadvantage you may be eligible for Graduate Access Melbourne. Graduate Access Melbourne (GAM) is the University's equity program for domestic graduate coursework students. Under GAM, specific circumstances of applicants will be considered in relation to admission and bursaries.
I will have to move to Melbourne to study at UoM, what accommodation options do I have?	You can read about the various accommodation options offered by UoM here . All of our coursework subjects are offered in person only- so on campus attendance is required.
How can I stand out as an applicant?	Excellent grades, solid referees and performance in the interview.
Does UoM assist you in finding a job after completing the course?	We will pass on information related to internships and how to apply, but we do not have a role in sourcing employment or positions for graduates.
Is there a Psychology student society that I can join?	Yes, there are student societies associated with psychology at UoM. We link to them from the MSPS website .
I have completed prior studies in psychology outside of Australia, can I apply for a postgraduate psychology course at UoM?	Yes. However, before you apply you will need to have your prior studies assessed by the Australian Psychological Society to confirm that your studies were equivalent to what is required for APAC accreditation .
How important are the interviews in the application process?	Previous study results are the primary factor we consider when shortlisting applicants. Following the initial shortlisting, the interview plays an important role in selection, and the panel will also review the personal statement and references.
Can I defer a course offer?	Applications for deferral are assessed on a case by case basis, and may be available for up to 12 months if approved. Discussions about deferral are not undertaken until someone is offered a place in a program.
How do I apply for the combined Masters and PhD programs?	It is not possible to apply for the combined programs as an external applicant. You must first be admitted into the Masters course, complete one year and can then apply for the combined program.

This document was created for the Postgraduate Psychology Information Session on 25 August 2026

The University of Melbourne (Australian University) PRV12150 / CRICOS 00116K

Do you make conditional offers?	Yes, we do make conditional offers for applicants who are on track to meet entry requirements for the upcoming intake.
Are there scholarships for international students for the combined Masters/PhD program?	Unfortunately, no scholarships currently available for this course.
Are interviews conducted individually or in a group setting? Are they online or in-person?	All interviews are conducted on an individual basis (i.e. one student per interview). Interviews for the Master Professional Psychology and the Master of Psychology (Clinical and Neuropsychology) are conducted online via a video-based platform. Interviews for Master of Psychology (Educational and Developmental) are conducted in-person or on Zoom.
Are the Masters programs graded with a mark out of 100)? Or are they focused on competency (i.e. pass/fail grading)?	Most coursework assessments are graded but there are placement subjects that have competency grades. Please refer to the relevant Handbook page for further details.
Are there opportunities for rural or remote placements in the psychology programs?	Yes, there are some opportunities although the number and availability of these can vary from year to year. Some of our graduates have undertaken placements in rural and remote areas.
What can I do if I am not successful in getting into my chosen course? What other options do I have to use my psychology degree if I decide I no longer want to pursue registration as a psychologist?	There are many different ways that our graduates use their psychology degrees. Rather than being a registered psychologist, some may instead go on to work in marketing, advocacy or social work (as well as many more areas). Please review our pathways document and you will see there are many different opportunities that psychology students may choose to pursue.
I have a question that isn't addressed in this document?	The answers to most questions about our courses can be found on the relevant Study or Handbook pages. If you have already looked at these and can't find the answer to your question, please reach out to us via the Enquire button found on the Study page of the course you are interested in. When you are on the relevant course, look for the Enquire button on the right-hand side of the page.
Can a prospective student place an application for multiple degrees?	If you are eligible for the entry requirements.
Considering the coming changes to psychology registration, how will that change graduate programs at Melbourne in future?	At present, the School and the University (and other institutions) are still awaiting the outcome of a submission made to the Psychology Board and the government, so this topic and any future changes are still very much at discussion/consultation phase.

What do placements look like in terms of structure? If Teachers/Coordinators feel that some students need more time to build their skill level as psychologists, would those students be told or recommended to be switched to part-time study? How difficult is it to get a paid placement?	Switch to Part-time, we wouldn't tell someone to switch from FT to PT because we have designed the course to build skills incrementally for competent and confident practice. Paid placements are not the norm. The University is still determining the processes for paid placement in psychology.
Best pathways for child psychology career.	Please refer to: The Pathways booklet
What English language tests are accepted (IELTS, PTE, Duolingo, etc.), and what are the minimum score requirements?	Please refer to English Requirements
What can I do in my last year of undergrad to maximise my eligibility for the program?	Focus on doing as well as possible academically so that you have a competitive application for Honours. Completion of a Honours year with high marks is the basis of eligibility for a Master's application.
How do you focus on culturally responsive care?	We are working with our First Nations Knowledges Team to ensure that our curricula reflect best practice in this space. Our aim is that culturally responsive care is embedded throughout our curricula at all levels (from undergraduate and upwards). We aren't quite there yet, but are working with some amazing academics and the community to inform how we achieve this.
How would you consider non-traditional experiences (eg corporate experience and career change) as opposed to community focussed background?	We are interested in how YOU reflect on these experiences. 'Community focussed' experience is not essential. We are looking for students who understand the area of psychology they are wanting to move into (Clinical, Clinical Neuro, Professional Psychology) and who can reflect on their life experience - whatever form that takes- to tell us how that has shaped them and why they are suited to postgraduate training in psychology.
What is the difference between Master of Psychology (Clinical) and Graduate Diploma in Clinical Psychology. If I already have a Master of Health Psychology but no practice, which of the two qualifications should I apply for?	The Graduate Diploma in Clinical Psychology is a bridging course for fully registered psychologists who want to specialise in Clinical Psychology. Typically the students are clinical neuropsychologists who now wish to switch to Clinical Psychology work. It's up to you- what area of psychology interests you most? Psychologists of all 'types' work in health-related areas, with patients who experience an array of health difficulties. It depends what you want to focus on in your practice really.

What changes in the field does the university see having a big impact in the next five years, and how is the master's curriculum evolving to prepare students for those changes?	The biggest potential change is the proposal by the Psychology Board to completely change training pathways. While it has not been confirmed yet, it is most likely that there will be some change in the future- with practical aspects of psychology introduced earlier in the training pathway (bigger emphasis at undergraduate level). Beyond that - I suspect we will see AI applications in clinical practice growing- which could be a good thing but also needs to be managed appropriately. Contributions to training by people with lived and living experience is another area that I think will grow in the future. Our curricula are constantly evolving to ensure that we are able to address emerging areas.
The differences between registration as a general psychologist and a clinical psychologist within the Master or Psychology program.	Graduates of all of the Master of Psychology programs (Clinical, Clinical Neuropsychology and Educational/Developmental Psychology) graduate eligible for generalist registration. They then have to complete a registrar program to be eligible for endorsement in the area focussed on by their program. Graduates of the Master of Professional Psychology program need to complete an internship to be eligible for generalist registration. See Psychology Board of Australia website for more information about this.
Are international students put in the same pool of applicants when applying (non-GAM vs GAM), or are they put in a separate pool?	There are places reserved for international students.
You don't need a honours/GDPA year to apply for any of the masters programs then?	Master of Clinical/Neuro Psychology require an honours year. Master of Professional Psychology don't require a honours year
If our university does not supply numerical marks, how shall our WAM be determined? I only have a GPA.	We standardise GPA to UoM equivalent WAM; admissions staff will convert.
How many people get shortlisted for an interview per cohort?	Depends on selection ranking.
If currently completing 4th year, will semester 1 grades be considered when assessing WAM?	Semester 1 results needed to be considered for provisional entry score.
Will you be required to maintain a certain WAM upon acceptance?	You will be required to maintain the same WAM as at time of admission.
I am an honours Psychology student from Singapore. Is there anything to note for international applicants?	All psychology study outside Australia requires APS assessment. You can submit application while awaiting final results but APS assessment is mandatory to proceed. Ensure APS assessment to confirm APAC accredited sequence and check entry requirements; may require 500-word personal statement and referee reports.

I have APS saying my degree is equivalent to 3rd year APAC. I appealed. Can I still apply if appeal undecided by 31 Aug?	Submit application before closing date and provide evidence of appeal; you can upload outcome later but there may be a cut-off for providing additional documents.
Are international students ranked based on grades for interviews and assessed among international students only?	Shortlisting is conducted within the international applicant cohort and selection ranking is among international applicants.
Do any masters pathways allow study abroad/exchange?	Generally, not possible for professional pathways due to APAC accreditation and intensive placements.
Would postgraduate masters or PhD influence applications?	Main consideration is undergraduate academic performance; postgraduate qualification can be presented to selection committee but not guaranteed to influence assessment.
Can you share how GAM info is/is not shared with professors?	GAM information is highly confidential and not shared with teaching staff without appropriate permission.
Does completing GP/PhD affect applications?	Postgrad qualifications can be presented to selection committee but not guaranteed to influence selection.
How many applications do you receive each year for clinical neuropsychology and clinical psychology?	On average: >1500 applications for Clinical Psychology and >500 for neuropsychology.
When are interviews / notification timelines / offers released?	Timelines are under "After You Apply" section on course pages; approximate dates provided.